

Interview

1. What is your age?

I am 21 years old and working part time right now.

2. Who do you live with?

I'm living with my parents, a younger sister who is in university and an older brother who is nearly finished college. I used to live with my roommate off-campus when I was at college, but that was over a year ago. I also have two parrots and a pet turtle.

3. What voice assistant device do you own and what led you to acquiring it?

My dad purchased it right after his promotion at work, which really surprised all of us. He is not the most tech-savvy person out there, so it came as a huge surprise for our family.

Taha: What do you think made him choose Google home out of all things? Why not a new smart TV or something?

I think he's trying to be as innovative as he can and we're already comfortable with our TV set-up. Though, I recall speaking to him about my interest in Google Home and home automation in general. That probably was the deal-breaker for him and the purchase has been good for us I think.

4. When did you acquire the device?

As I said, it was after my dad's promotion which was around mid October. He's been at the same workplace for over 8 years now!

5. How often do you use your device?

It depends entirely on the day. If it's a slow Monday, I use it maybe 2-3 times in the morning mainly to see how my week is planned out. If I come back exhausted from work, I try to unwind by constantly keeping up with sports, and I'd ask my device to read score lines for example. If it's the weekend and I have people over, I use it more often for Spotify, or searching up recipe clarifications for example. It really depends on the context of the day.

6. Would you say you use your device's functionality to its fullest? What is your favourite feature?

Absolutely not. I do feel like I did good by hooking it up with Spotify and my TV, but I still feel I can do a lot more with regards home automation. I feel that'll come with more experience and I expect to be more reliant on it soon.

My favorite feature is the easiness in playing the playlists I want from Spotify.

7. Tell me about any inconveniences in using the device. Is there a feature you find the most irritating?

I don't think it's difficult to use the device at all. Irritating at times, yes. Difficult, no. I don't think I've used the device to it's fullest functionality as I mentioned before though.

The most irritating feature is voice recognition personally. It doesn't recognize basic web searching at times, which I think ties down to the voice recognition. For example, I asked "Hey Google, what teams did Mahmoud Dahoud play for" and variations of "I can't understand" were returned in response.

8. When you interact with your voice assistant, does it feel like you're interacting with a human?

I never really put that much thought into it, but not really. As much as I tried to humanize it, I still feel it's akin to a GPS google maps giving off directions. To say it's like interacting with a human is a huge stretch in my opinion.

9. Do you have any semblance of connectedness with the device?

No, it's gotten progressively worse than since I first started using the device.

10. Do you feel safe when using the device?

No feelings of that at all, in fact, I sort of feel a bit of uneasiness in using it in excess due to privacy concerns.

11. Has privacy ever been a concern since acquiring the device?

It's my biggest concern with the device bar-none. I understand with the need of Google needing to collect data to provide me with the service I need, but I can't help but shake off the feeling of being listened on. I've always been this type of person though, I put black tape on my laptop monitor as well. It's just my nature I suppose!

12. Do any of your privacy concerns affect what information you share with your device?

Absolutely. I don't really ask for any taboo searches or anything along the lines of that. I try not to share private information when I'm using the device as well.

13. Since the acquirement of the device, has there been a significant change in your prior hobbies or social life?

It's the same as before I got the device. I do find myself using the Spotify feature more than I usually did before though.

14. Are you satisfied with the device?

Overall, yes. I'm glad I got to experience the modern innovative technology for the most part. Home automation is the future and it's good to get some experience with the device under my belt I believe. I still feel there can be significant improvements in the near future and I'll always keep my ears open on it.
